Security at CL&P

In response to the increased concern with national security, CL&P has enhanced safety and security precautions across Connecticut and is operating at an increased level of security. Our goal is to protect our employees and facilities and minimize any potential disruption of electric service.

One of our most important security rules is not to divulge details of our security plans or measures. However, we can assure our employees and the public of the following:

- While CL&P has always been extremely safety and security conscious, in light of national and international conditions, we are operating at an increased level of security and vigilance.
- We have increased surveillance at all our facilities.
- Our buildings are secured by card-reader access for entrance, and employees are being reminded each week not to allow anyone to enter company buildings without proper identification.
- We are working with utility industry groups as well as federal, state and local officials to determine the appropriate level of preparedness.
